Subject: Regarding: SC PSC Docket 2005-385-E, Order No. 2006-680 (Net metering)

To: SC Public Service Commission:

Kindly accept this short note written in favor of residential "net metering" in South Carolina, from a lifelong resident citizen.

A number of states have gone before us in implementing net metering -- without suffering significant disadvantages. The interconnection issues have been solved.

South Carolina, from USC to Gov. Sanford, want to position the state as a leader in energy research, but I can only imagine the embarrassment if SC continues to forego residential net metering.

As a country, we consider our energy supply to be part of our essential strategic national interest. Surely, in a time when global warming is being acknowledged from all sides, we can add this to our fight for cleaner air and for carbon reduction.

(I know of no financial interest for myself, family, or friends for this issue, and am writing solely as a concerned citizen.)
